

Hidden photovoltaic panels on the roof

Overview

While the appearance of solar panels may not appeal to some homeowners, numerous creative solutions are available to help them blend in with your home's exterior. From strategic landscaping and roof upgrades to innovative technologies like solar shingles and BIPV, you'll have options if you want to.

Placing trees and other foliage around the property is a simple way to camouflage and distract from solar panels, though you'll need some patience. While this natural approach can effectively block the panels from view, it can take decades for trees to fully mature.

Sometimes, no matter how many plants you add or gables and overhangs, the main roof of a house isn't the best place for solar panels from the standpoint of aesthetics or efficiency. Why not explore alternative locations that are less visible but still effective for.

Pairing a solar installation with a roof upgrade helps the panels blend and can also improve the home's overall appearance. An upgraded roof chosen to accommodate solar panels gives the house a uniform, polished appearance.

If you're buying or building a new home or considering a major renovation, plan the house's orientation to make a significant difference in the solar panel's visibility from the street. Thoughtful.
